PINNACLE ATHLETIC CAMPUS

Sports complex closer to final OK

By Melody Burri
mburri@messengerpostmedia.com

VICTOR — A proposed 94-acre multi-sport health and wellness complex in the hamlet of Fishers got positive reviews from Victor residents and Town Board members Monday night.

The Feb. 11 public hearing gave residents a chance to weigh in on the rezoning of property just south of the intersection of Phillips Road and Main Street, Fishers — the future site of Pinnacle Athletic Campus. The project, driven by Jim Ludwig, president of North Coast Construction, would need to become a Planned Development District, or PDD, before it could move forward.

John Caruso, senior vice president with engineering/architecture firm Passero Associates, was on hand to give project specifics.

The preliminary development plan, Caruso said, calls for two indoor multi-sport athletic facility buildings not to exceed 160,000 square feet in total; up to five medical, commercial or retail flex space buildings with total combined square footage not to exceed 150,000 square feet; and up to two hotel buildings where the total rooms for rent of both hotels would not exceed 150 rooms.

The commercial flex space would all have a health and wellness theme, Caruso said.

"We have worked for three months with the Planning Board to write the code for allowable uses," said Caruso. "We also identified some of the limits. For instance, there could only be one restaurant, and it could not have a drive-through window. We brought clarity to uses, and thresholds, and the result is a code that has flexibility, has limits, and has a possibility for amendments if needed."

The complex would also include six soccer fields, combined with four baseball fields located on 23.8 acres between the Auburn and Lehigh trails. It would also have an alternative outdoor action sports area on 15.4 acres.

"I'm looking forward to a very positive economic impact for our hotels, restaurants and retail shops," said Victor Chamber of Commerce President Mitch Donovan. "This sort of a project is something that generates a lot of traffic and a lot of activity for

As President Obama prepares to deliver his State of the Union address tonight, citizens are hoping for a message focused on boosting the economy

Victor resident Kate Powell said she is trying to remain hopeful about the economy, but it's difficult.

A stay-at-home mother of three, Powell said she and her husband, Jason, co-owner in a small, family-owned graphics business, have been fortunate. They have been able to make ends meets through Jason's career, she said. But she worries about the future: Friends have lost jobs in recent years, and Kate's parents are Kodak retirees who need to continue working part-time, she said.

"If my parents have to work, if they are struggling, where does that leave us?" Kate said Monday.

When President Obama gives his State of the Union address tonight, Kate said she hopes it offers a strong message focused on the economy.

ARREST

GOP leader expected to resign

Daniel A. Olson charged with second DWI in three years over weekend

By Tammy Whitacre
twhitacre@messengerpostmedia.com

LYONS —Wayne County's Republican Party chairman is expected to resign following his second driving while intoxicated arrest in three years last weekend.

Daniel A. Olson, 61, of 2728 Layton Street Road, Lyons, was charged Friday, Feb. 8 with felony driving while intoxicated, refusal of a breath test, failing to stop at a stop sign and operating without headlights, Lyons police said.

Police said Olson allegedly drove through a snow bank as he left a liquor store in Lyons without turning his headlights on. Police said they stopped Olson along Montezuma Street, where field sobriety tests revealed he was intoxicated, although he refused to take a breath test.

Olson has been GOP committee chairman for more than 20 years and was also a longtime Victor High School teacher. Republican Committee First Vice Chair Bob Oaks who is also a state assemblyman, said Monday that county GOP leaders will meet at a yet-to-be-determined date at which time Olson intends to resign his position as chairman.

CANANDAIGUA

Geologist to speak about fracking

As part of its moratorium on high-volume hydraulic fracturing, the city of Canandaigua environmental committee will host an hour-long presentation by geologist Richard Young Feb. 12.

The city passed a 12-month ban on the controversial gas drilling method in July. The purpose of the moratorium was to gather information on the subject and to better understand the implications — both positive and negative — of the gas drilling industry, said City Manager Kay James.

Young has been a faculty member at SUNY Geneseo for 43 years.

The meeting will be at 7 p.m. Tuesday at the Hurley Building, 205 Saltonstall St. in Canandaigua.

ALBANY

Report: Safest hunting season

The New York State Department of Environmental Conservation announced Monday the 2012 New York hunting season had the lowest number of hunting-related shooting incidents on record.

The season included 24 personal incidents with a little more than half being self-inflicted. Two fatalities that occurred during the deer season where hunters were shot by members of their own hunting group, the DEC stated. There were no hunting-related shooting incidents reported during the first youth hunt for deer that took place this past Columbus Day weekend.

Though the number of hunters is declining in the state, the hunting incident rate (incidents per 100,000 hunters) is falling much faster. Since the 1960s, the number of hunters has declined about 20 percent, while the incident rate has plunged more than 70 percent. The past five-year average is 5.3 incidents per 100,000 hunters, compared to 19 per 100,000 in the 1960s.

DEC Commissioner Joe Martens stated that the “declining statistics prove that New York does have a safety-conscious generation of hunters, in great thanks to the committed efforts of more than 2,500 volunteer Sportsman Education Instructors.”

BOYS BASKETBALL

Honeoye won’t enter sectionals

By Dan Goldman

dgoldman@messengerpostmedia.com

HONEOYE — Honeoye Central School District Superintendent David Bills released a statement on the district website Monday that the varsity boys basketball team won’t compete in the Section 5 tournament this year.

The team previously forfeited its remaining three regular season games after investigating an incident which the district originally characterized as hazing.

“Recent incidents were in violation of our code of conduct and although we are not able to release any specific information due to student confidentiality, we will continue to follow protocol procedure regarding this incident,” Bills stated. “Although unfortunate, this is an opportunity for our student athletes, who are representatives of our school district, to learn and grow.”

Honeoye’s Board of Education accepted the resignation of varsity basketball coach Jim Parshall and JV coach Jordan Trowbridge last Wednesday. Players on the team received five days of out-of-school suspension and 10 days without extracurricular activities and will need to complete 10 days of community service, according to parents of boys on the team.

Parshall declined to comment.

Parents said the incident occurred on a bus ride home from a basketball game. Players were giving one another “wedgies,” according to parents.

Honeoye led the Finger Lakes West league with an 11-4 record before forfeiting the Bulldogs’ final three games. Honeoye lost to York in the Section 5 Class C3 finals last year. The JV team has continued to play games.

“It is our goal for the team to return to competition next year as ambassadors for the community of Honeoye,” Bills stated.

Last week, Board of Education member Patrick Freivald made a public post about the incident on Facebook and invited others to share the information. The post has since been deleted.

He stated that the incident wasn’t “boys will be boys” as one parent said.

“This was behavior that anti-hazing policies are designed to stop and that the Dignity for All Students Act is designed to stop,” Freivald stated.

Freivald also mentioned the existence of tapes of the incident. He stated laws prohibit the district from releasing the tapes.

“Believe it or not, nobody reported anything about hazing,” Freivald stated. “The bus driver complained about rowdiness, which prompted a review of the tapes and I don’t think people realize just how well infrared cameras can see what’s going on — things the driver couldn’t. (There was no ‘rat’ or ‘tattletale’ in this story, and the bus driver did not heroically intervene in an event he couldn’t realize was happening).”

Several people commented on the post and asked questions.

“As to ‘wedgies,’ don’t let the juvenile nature of the word fool you — if you’re not willing to take the word of the adults you’ve elected to represent you that this was serious, there’s nothing I or anyone else can do about that, because the tape can’t be legally shared,” Freivald stated.

The board member stated that the actions taken by Bills are “appropriate, align with school policy and the law, and have my full support.”

When contacted for questions, Freivald directed all media inquiries to the superintendent. Bills did not return calls.

VALENTINE’S DAY

Not feeling the love

Kelley Blue, the teen services librarian at Wood Library in Canandaigua, is hosting an Anti-Valentine’s Day party this Thursday. The event features an “unromantic” Wii bowling tournament, Blue said.

Wood Library is hosting an Anti-Valentine’s Day party this Thursday for teens CANANDAIGUA — Teens looking to keep their own candy and escape the sickly-sweet commercialism of Valentine’s Day can come to Wood Library’s Anti-Valentine’s Day Teen Night this Thursday.

“The second Thursday of every month is our teen game night, which is very popular,” said Teen Services and Reference Librarian Kelley Blue. “This month, it happened to fall on Valentine’s Day. So we decided to have an Anti-Valentine’s Day party for those teens that aren’t in a relationship or are sick of all of the lovey-dovey stuff. We just wanted to plan a really silly, really unromantic night of fun.”

Blue, who is in her first year at Wood Library, discussed the idea with her supervisor, Jenny Goodemote, Wood Library’s director.

“We thought, ‘What’s more unromantic than bowling?’” Blue said.

With that, Blue decided to make the event a boys vs. girls Wii Bowling Tournament. A movie screen and a large-screen TV and each will be hooked up to a Wii gaming system.

Though it is an Anti-Valentine’s Day celebration, it wouldn’t be Valentine’s Day without candy. And there will be no shortage of sweets.

“We’re going to put out a ton of chocolate, because usually on Valentine’s Day you have to give all of your chocolate away to someone else,” Blue says. “But we’re just going to pig out on chocolate ourselves. We’re also going to get unfrosted heart sugar cookies and write our own nasty conversation hearts.”

Prizes will be awarded to the team with the highest score and also to the best-dressed bowler.

“I have a ton of really great books that I give as prizes, and we also sweeten the deal with candy or some other kind of treat,” Blue said. “I try to tie in reading to whatever I can, but we also love to have kids here whether they like to read or not. I want them to have a positive attitude about the library.”

The program is part of Wood Library’s “Teen Scene,” located on the second floor. In addition to game night, there is also a High School Book Club, a “Be-Tween” Book club for grades 6-8, Anime Club, and movie and pizza nights.

COURT

Cronin to be sentenced Wednesday

Former executive director pleads guilty to embezzlement

By Erinn Cain

ecain@messengerpostmedia.com

CANANDAIGUA — The Canandaigua man who pleaded guilty last month to embezzling from the Greater Canandaigua Civic Center while he was the executive director is scheduled to be sentenced Wednesday in Ontario County Court.

Michael P. Cronin, 49, of 17 Douglas Drive, pleaded guilty Jan. 2 before Judge Frederick Reed to the charge of second-degree grand larceny.

The plea agreement includes a guaranteed sentence of one to three years in prison if Cronin provides $20,000 in restitution prior to sentencing. The total restitution is over $70,000, prosecutors said.

Cronin was charged Aug. 17, 2012 by Canandaigua city police with embezzling more than $71,000 from the civic center while he was the executive director there. Cronin worked at the center from 2007 to July 2012, and the embezzling occurred from December 2010 to July 17, 2012, said Sgt. Scott Kadien.

Police said Cronin wrote checks to himself, took money from a savings account and would say money was deposited before keeping it for himself.

When asked last month in court about his decision to embezzle from the center, Cronin said the reason was drugs, specifically cocaine.

The maximum sentence for the felony charge would have been two to six years in prison.

Cronin is out on $5,000 cash or $10,000 bail bond.

situation,” she said. With many countries exceeding the United States when it comes to technology, education and other measures of success, economic growth should be at center of attention, Kate said.

Such concerns are expected to take center stage in tonight's address. The president will talk about boosting job creation and economic growth at a time of high unemployment, underscoring the degree to which the economy could threaten his ability to pursue second-term priorities such as gun control, immigration policy and response to climate change.

Sharing Kate's concerns Monday were members of the Humbe family. Chris and Maryellen Humbe said they both grew up in the Finger Lakes region and returned to the area from out of state to raise their family. But financial woes in both Albany and Washington have weighed heavily on them, they said.

During a shopping trip Monday at Eastview Mall in Victor, Chris Humbe said he works closely with families in his job as a church youth director in Avon. Families are facing hard times financially, he said, and it is discouraging for the youth as well as the older generations. Maryellen said she recently launched a home business selling jewelry, so she could be home to take care of their four children while also helping pay the bills.

In looking toward money for retirement, Chris said he was at first encouraged to see his Individual Retirement Account had recovered from its dive a few years ago. Then he realized that his IRA had simply recovered to the value it was before the recession hit.

“Now I am just back where I was,” he said.

Obama also may use tonight’s prime-time address before a joint session of Congress to announce the next steps for concluding the U.S.-led war in Afghanistan by the end of 2014.

Congressional representatives for Ontario County, Republicans Tom Reed and Chris Collins, have both been pushing the jobs issue.

During a visit Monday to a Victor business, Apparel Printers Plus, Collins, who represents the 27th district, told a like-minded audience of local business owners that “Washington is doing nothing to give small business owners the confidence they need to invest in their company and create jobs.”

Collins said he is fighting to lighten the burden of regulations that he said are stifling small businesses. A website (<http://smallbusiness.house.gov/> resources/regulatory-watch.htm) by the House Committee on Small Business, offers a way for businesses to comment on regulatory proposals, he said.

Reed, who represents the 23rd district, is also pointing to jobs and the economy.

“Our number-one priority remains, and needs to remain, improving our economy,” Reed stated last week after the U.S. Department of Labor released statistics showing the unemployment rate increased to 7.9 percent in January, up from 7.8 percent in December.

“Private-sector job growth is the area we should be focusing on,” stated Reed in a release. “Tackling our debt, reducing burdensome regulations, reforming the tax code to make it competitive and developing an 'all-of-the-above,' comprehensive energy policy are key components to growing our private sector.”

COMPLEX

our businesses. We believe it will generate return business as well.”

In addition to a boost in traffic, the complex could mean a new site on local turf for community youth sports programs.

“As a dad with three young boys, I will welcome this type of facility,” said Victor Councilman Dave Tantillo, who added that athletic fields are at a premium, and coordinating school athletic schedules and community sports needs can be a challenge.

“We’re going to reap the benefits but we will walk slowly (and carefully) through this process,” Tantillo assured residents.

The new complex could also potentially become the new home base for Victor Parks and Recreation, which would relocate from its current Blossom Road address to a newly constructed 10,000-square-foot office and programming space, and 11,000-square-foot recreation space.

“I too am excited about the prospect,” said Fishers resident Carl Herke. “I think the community does need some type of facility. I did see that it has the possibility of a 100-room hotel. I know there has been a lot of hotel growth in that area and they don’t appear to be anywhere near to capacity. I have some concerns about the traffic, too, but overall I’m looking forward to something like this.”

Councilman Jack Dianetti said the Conservation Board is very concerned that natural resources are protected.

“We believe this project will reclaim and enhance many of our natural resources,” Dianetti said on behalf of the Conservation Board. “Overall, this is a very positive project. I think the community will be behind it.”

Developers of Pinnacle Athletic Campus initially unveiled the plan before the Town Board in May 2012. A resolution to rezone the parcel is expected to be up for vote on either Feb. 25 or March 11.

OLSON

Upon Olson’s resignation, Oaks will become acting chairman — a position he held years ago — until the committee elects someone to take over the position. Oaks said the normal cycle for electing a chairman is two years. Olson’s term would have ended in September.

“Dan has provided 20-plus years of outstanding leadership and thousands of hours as the committee chairman,” Oaks said. “He obviously has some personal challenges he has to confront. My heartfelt thoughts will be with him.”

Olson's previous charge

On Aug. 29, 2010, Olson was charged after deputies, state police and Alton fire and ambulance were called to the intersection of Preemption and Ridge roads in Sodus, where a witness saw Olson drive through the intersection and go off the road. The right side of Olson’s car hit a concrete water meter station, owned by the Wayne County Water Authority, causing damage to both the car and the structure. That night, the witness told deputies that after the accident, Olson backed his car into the woods and shut it off. Olson’s blood alcohol content was .27 percent — more than three times the legal limit.

In October 2010, Olson pleaded guilty to aggravated driving while intoxicated and received a one-year conditional discharge and had to pay $1,400 in fines and surcharges. He was also ordered to have an ignition interlock device — which stops a person drinking alcohol from starting the car — installed in his vehicle for up to one year. His license was also revoked.

Olson, who was released on his own recognizance following the arrest, is scheduled to appear in Lyons Village Court tonight. Wayne County District Attorney Rick Healy had no comment on Olson’s arrest.

ALBANY

NY Capitol rallies set on gun rights, limits

Supporters and opponents of the state’s new gun restrictions have scheduled competing rallies at the Capitol, with buses from New York City and Buffalo scheduled to bring their respective groups.

The organization Turn Albany Upside

Down says both the quick passage and some provisions in the new measure are unlawful, calling the seven-bullet legal limit on magazines “arbitrary and capricious.”

Carl Paladino, the 2010 Republican candidate for governor, says there’s bus transportation from Buffalo to the rally Tuesday on the Capitol steps.

The new law was pushed by Democratic Gov. Andrew Cuomo, who defeated Paladino.
